FRANCE CHOPS A HEAD
40 WELL-SPENT MILLIONS
SHARP-SHOOTING, NEW STYLE

—By Arthur Brisbane
(Copyright 1932 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WHEN THAT which calls itself civilization imitates the murderer by murdering him, the process is never pleasant. But, in Paris, it is at least dramatic. Yesterday France killed the half-crazy Russian, Gorguloff, who killed President Doumer.

The slanting blade of the guillotine chopped off the Russian's head just as the dawn broke a little after five yesterday morning.

The writer, who saw and reported guillottings in Paris for Charles A. Dana, long ago, can assure you that the spectacle is not pleasant. But France is efficient.

The prisoner appears hobbled, walks to his death, a priest beside him. In this case, a priest of the Orthodox Greek church, who kissed the murderer just before the blade fell. The head was off 40 seconds after the man appeared.

WHEN the murderer is unpopular, as in the case of one Prado, who had killed several women, the excitable crowd rushes forward to dip a handkerchief in the blood "for luck."

GORGULOFF's last words were "Russia! Russia! my fatherland!"

He had drunk two glasses of rum, supplied by the French government, but declined the cigarette also politely supplied at public expense. He hoped his child would not be a Communist and that it would be a boy. It is not yet born.

GORGULOFF seemed to appreciate the salute with sabers which the garde republicaine honored him from the back of their horses in accordance with custom. France is always polite to the dead or dying. Hats are all removed at sight of a head.

As you read this, Gorguloff, if he knows anything, knows many things that he did not suspect here on earth. He knows that what happens on the half divided little grain of sand, called the earth, recently abandoned by him, makes little difference in the cosmic scheme.

FROM LOS ANGELES, John G. Bullock telegraphs to New York this excellent news:

"The metropolitan water district of southern California has just closed with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to take 40 million metropolitan water district bonds. This enables the city to start work on the $220,000,000 aqueduct to bring Colorado river water over the desert through the mountain tunnels, a distance of 300 miles, to the metropolitan area of southern California, including Los Angeles and 12 other member cities. The work will employ an average of 10,000 men over the six-year period of construction. In addition materials used will result in employment of labor throughout the nation."

THAT IS good news in these times. It means work for 10,000, and in addition these 40 millions of government money will be paid back easily from earnings. Mr. Bul-

Italy Organizes Search For Missing Airplane

NURSE'S SHIP LONG OVERDUE IN ROME FLIGHT

Last Reported Sighted 400 Miles Off Coast of Ireland

MINISTER OF AIR ORDERS OUT PILOTS

Foresters, Warships, Police Force Help In Hunt For Americans

(By Associated Press)

ROME, Sept. 15.—Every searching agency under the control of the Italian government was set to work today to find the missing monoplane "American Nurse" which had disappeared on a non-stop flight from New York to Rome.

She was due here last night with her crew of two men and a woman, but there was no report of the plane after 11:50 a. m. yesterday, when a steamer reported sighting it 400 miles off the southern coast of Ireland.

Orders Out All Pilots

As soon as he was certain that the fuel must be exhausted even if there had been no accident, General Italo Balbo, the minister for air, ordered all pilots, military and civil, on land and sea, to search for signs of the plane or for wreckage. Forestry workers, lighthouse keepers, warships and merchantmen, as well as the entire national police force were instructed to be vigilant. Aviation authorities doubted that the plane had reached Italy, but the government notified the American military attaché that everything possible was being done.

(By Associated Press)

ROME, Sept. 15.—The monoplane "American Nurse," carrying two men and a woman, on a non-stop flight from New York to Rome, was missing today.

Although due to arrive here around midnight last night, no report of it has been received since 11:50 a. m. yesterday. (Salem time) when the liner Paris reported sighting a plane believed to be the "American Nurse" 400 miles off the southern coast of Ireland.

At 1:16 a. m. today the 53 hours given as the limit of time for its gasoline supply, had passed. Officials at the Ciampino airport here, where lights were kept burning through the night, expressed deep concern over the fate of the fliers. They are William Ulbrich, pilot, of Mineola, N. Y.; Miss Edna Newcomer, 28-year-old undergraduate nurse of Williamsport, Pa., and Dr. Leon M. Pisculli of Yonkers, the commander of the expedition. The chief anxiety was that the plane's gasoline supply might have given out over the Mediterranean area.

Youngstown Maps New Traffic Plans

YOUNGSTOWN, Sept. 15.—Complete revision of Youngstown's downtown traffic system, including the re-routing of municipal railway buses, is suggested in two reports being considered today by city officials.

One proposal, approved by Utilities Engineer Elliott Engersoll, would combine eight bus routes into four, making it possible for the first time for bus passengers to go from the South Side to the North, or from the East Side to the West, without transferring.

The other proposal, contained in the report of Alex Conquest, traffic engineer, suggests removing the present traffic signals in the downtown section and replacing them with a new $5,000 system which would be controlled centrally from the police station.

Conquest also urged designation of some downtown thoroughfares as one-way streets.

Both plans are to be considered by city council committees.

Babe Feeling Fine, May Play Wednesday

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Babe Ruth, still confined to his Riverside drive apartment, is looking forward to next Wednesday, when he will be back in the Yankee lineup against the Athletics at Philadelphia.

"The Babe is feeling fine today," said Mrs. Ruth, "but it is hard to keep him quiet as the doctor has ordered."

Trawler Will Take Fliers To Scotland

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The Daily Herald says the Trawler Lord Talbot has been instructed to call at Amagasaki, Greenland, during the next five days for the American flying family of George R. Hutchinson and bring them to Aberdeen, Scotland, whence they will come here.

Missing Nurse

Miss Edna Newcomer, Williamsport, Pa., nurse, and her companions, Dr. Leon Pisculli and pilot, William Ulbrich, were missing today on their proposed non-stop flight to Rome, Italy.

QUAKER ANNUAL GIVEN HONORS

Certificate Is Awarded By Ohio School Association

A certificate awarding The Quaker Annual, Salem High school publication of last June, all-Ohio honor rating, today was received from the Journalism Association of Ohio Schools at Columbus by R. W. Hilgendorf, faculty advisor.

The certificate lauded work of the Salem High staff, commenting especially on the color balance, drawings by John Reeves and editorial articles.

The Annual was edited by Mary Lou Miller with Lionel Smith as business manager, Hilgendorf and Miss Eleanor Workman were faculty advisors. Other members of the staff were: Editorial—Melvin Heston, Mary Louise Scullion, Claire King, John Reeves, Selma Liebscher, Virginia Grama, Viola Bodo, Ralph Long, Paul Smith, Mary Burke, Dale Leary, Betty Hinkle, Minnie Untch, Margaret Roth, Mary Campbell, Dorothy McConnell, Dorothy Wright, LaVerda Capel, Doris King, Wade Schaefer, William Bowling, Bessie Mileusnic, Mary Balorinich and Sara Spiker.

Business—Richard Chamberlain, Paul Strader, Kenneth Herbert, Albert Hanna, Kenneth Koozt, Raymond Reich and Thomas Hutson.

Tax Association Reads Messages

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 15.—Its four-day session featured by the reading of messages from the presidential candidates of the Republican and Democratic parties, the National Tax association prepared to close its 25th annual conference here today with a discussion of state and local taxation.

A report of the association's committee on delinquent taxes and one by the resolutions committee were on the final day's program. Speakers included M. Slade Kendrick, Cornell university; Frank F. Davis, Rhode Island tax commissioner, and C. E. Righter, Detroit Bureau of Governmental Research.

Messages from President Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee, felicitating the association on the occasion of its 25th anniversary, were read to the conference yesterday.

Young People At W.C.T.U. Convention

Members of the Young People's branch of the Salem W. C. T. U. will participate in the annual county W. C. T. U. convention at Lisbon next Wednesday.

A program of entertainment to be presented at the convention was arranged at the unit's meeting last night at the home of Bonita Crumbraker, Vine ave.

The monthly meeting of the Y. P. B. is scheduled on September 27 at the home of Martha Jean Young.

Hoover Hits Bonus Payment

Legion To Act On Cash Demand Today

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—In President Hoover's opinion, immediate cash payment of the bonus would "be a deadly blow at the welfare of the nation."

"I have consistently opposed it," Mr. Hoover said yesterday. "In the public interest I must continue to oppose it."

He gave his position in a 700-word statement to the press which he said was "due to the country and to the veterans." It was directed at the American Legion convention in Portland, Ore., and was issued after the convention legislative committee had recommended adoption of a resolution favoring full and immediate payment of adjusted service certificates.

"The welfare of the nation as a whole, must take precedence over the demands of any particular group," the president said.

"I have the duty not alone to see that justice and a sympathetic attitude is taken by this nation toward the 4,000,000 veterans and their families, but also to exert myself for justice to the other 21,000,000 families to whom consum-

Body Recovered

Above is photo of Miss Dorothy Millette, known as "Mrs. Paul Bern," whose body was discovered in a river slough in California. The hunt for Miss Millette had been under way since the suicide of Bern.

FIND BODY OF MISSING WOMAN

Authorities End Search For Dorothy Millette; Plan Inquest

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Sept. 15.—Search for the body of Paul Bern, motion picture director, who killed himself, was believed ended today with the finding of the body of a woman in a Sacramento slough, identified as that of Miss Dorothy Millette.

Sure Identification

Both Coroner James Garlick and Ed J. Sullivan, clerk at a San Francisco hotel where the young woman had lived, said there was no doubt the body was that of Miss Millette, once known as "Mrs. Paul Bern."

Garlick said she apparently jumped to her death from a river steamer, early in the morning of Sept. 7, less than 48 hours after Bern shot himself in the Beverly Hills home he had given as a wedding gift to his bride of two months the blonde Jean Harlow of the films. Miss Millette checked out of the San Francisco hotel, Sept. 6, the day after Bern's body was found, and took a steamer bound for Sacramento.

The coroner said an inquest will be held tomorrow night.

Found By Two Japanese

The body was discovered floating in the slough by two Japanese fishermen only a few hours after the film executive's will was produced in Los Angeles by his secretary, Irene Harrison.

No mention was made in the will of Miss Millette, though his relatives said Bern had contributed to her support for several years. The entire estate was bequeathed to Miss Harlow, who was named sole executrix.

BATTER UP! OLD TIMERS TO PLAY IN CHARITY BILL

Extra Feature Arranged For Benefit Event At Stadium Tonight

ADMISSION FEE WILL BE SMALL

United Cigars, Mullins to Launch Battle For Championship

To help pay off clothing, fuel, food and medical bills incurred in relief work as well as provide the city's fandom with an ultra-entertaining program of athletic entertainment, two softball games, one the opening battle of the city championship series, will be played at Kelly athletic stadium tonight.

"Old Timers" To Play

The main event of the nocturnal program involves two Class A softball league rivals, the United Cigars and Mullins Foremen's club, with the preliminary attraction being a contest between Salem Old-Timers and a team selected by J. M. Kelley.

The first game, a five-inning affair, is booked at 7 o'clock and will show former Salem baseball stars, including Joseph Reese, A. Earl Beardmore, Clem Scullion, Harry Vincent, Constable William E. Smith, Frank Holloway and others, in a clash with an all-star team of mushballs.

The games will be played for the benefit of Salem's American Red Cross chapter which hopes to wipe out at least part of a $1,458 indebtedness to Salem merchants, physicians and coal dealers, from gate receipts obtained during the championship series which will run tonight, Monday and Tuesday nights.

In the meantime, the city relief commission of council, headed by Safety Director John Kerr, is taking care of new obligations from funds procured under provisions of the Pringle-Roberts act of the legislature.

Admission Is Little

Admission will be 15 and 10 cents while those persons who are short of funds will be admitted for canned goods, fruits, vegetables or similar donations.

Tonight's contest will find Eddie Miller of the Cigars and Earl McNamee of the Mullins as opposing pitchers.

The umpires will be George Early, Kelley and James D. Primm.

Salvation Army Leader Appeals For Furnishings

Capt. Florence MacLean of the Salvation Army today made an appeal to the public for equipment for the relief kitchen the Army maintains.

She stated that "with winter weather approaching we find that there are many things needed to make it possible to carry on our relief work."

Capt. MacLean is in need of a table, chairs, two heating stoves, dishes, etc.

Persons having donations of this kind are asked to call 299-J. "Any donations will be greatly appreciated," the captain said.

Approves Control In Limited Cases

(By Associated Press)

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 15.—Use of contraceptive measures of birth control "to gain ease and freedom for business or social activities" has been declared sinful and contrary to the primary purpose of matrimony by the Lake Erie conference of the Missouri Lutheran synod, English district.

It made the statement in approving the practice of birth control "in particular cases" although asserting that, generally speaking, economic and social reasons are not sufficient to warrant introduction on a wide scale.

The conference devoted portions of two days programs to discussion of the subject.

55 French Legion Men Die In Wreck

PARIS, Sept. 15.—Advices to the war ministry today placed the number of dead in the wreck of a train carrying 508 members of the French foreign legion in Algeria yesterday at 55.

A total of 223 were injured, these advices said.

Ministry officials said they believed heavy rains had washed out the roadbed, causing the tracks to give way.

Vets Stay Together

CADIZ, O., Sept. 15.—Annual reunions will be held by the Buckeye brigade, composed of Civil war veterans from ten regiments, as long as there are survivors.

SEE THAT NO ONE HUNGERS, HOOVER PLEA

Appeals to American People to Support Welfare Agencies

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Appealing to the American people to support generously private relief agencies, President Hoover today outlined to welfare and business leaders four salient points in caring for the nation's needy.

First, "To see that no man, woman or child shall go hungry or unsheltered through the approaching winter."

Second, "To see that our great benevolent agencies for character building, for hospitalization, for care of children and all their vast number of agencies of voluntary solicitude for the less fortunate are maintained in full strength."

Third, "To maintain the bedrock principle of our liberties, by the full mobilization."

Fourth, "That we maintain the spiritual impulses in our people for generous giving and generous service—in the spirit that each is his brother's keeper."

The President spoke at the White House to several hundred noted figures in American social service and industrial life. They were meeting in a one-day welfare and relief mobilization conference to rally support behind local community projects for extending aid to the unfortunate. Twenty-nine social service organizations have been enlisted.

"This is, I trust," Mr. Hoover told them, "the last winter in this great calamity. Yet despite

Would Modernize State School Laws

(By Associated Press)

ELYRIA, O., Sept. 15.—Claiming it would save taxpayers of the state more than $1,000,000 a year in county school expense, Rep. P. H. Rogers of Lorain county, plans to introduce a measure in the legislature for modernizing state school laws, he said he would introduce the bill at the special session to be called soon, if possible.

He would replace the county school board and paid superintendents and assistants with a county board composed of presidents of all districts, township and unincorporated village school boards. This board would elect seven or nine members of an executive committee which would be made responsible for all county school matters.

Rogers said his measure would eliminate teachers' examining boards, the annual cost of which is $54,000.

Baptism Planned At Lake Placid

Baptismal service for members of the newly organized Salem Pentecostal church, 270 South Broadway, will be held at Lake Placid, near North Georgetown, Saturday afternoon.

Plans for the service, at which members of the congregation will be immersed in the lake water, will be made at a congregational meeting at 7:30 tonight.

Members will also form plans for the purchase or lease of a regular church building for services.

A service will be held at 7:30 p. m. Friday while regular Sunday meetings are scheduled at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Wins Scholarship At Smith College

Miss Mary Rebecca Kile, 17, of Davis, Calif., niece of Mrs. Helen P. Miles of South Broadway, honor graduate of the Davis High school, has been awarded a scholarship at Smith college, Northampton, Mass. She won it on a competitive basis.

Miss Kile will leave Davis on Sept. 22, for the eastern school, which opens Sept. 26.

She has been granted the Gordon True Citizenship award in the high school at Davis. She will major in art at Smith, planning to make architecture her life work.

Miss Kile is known in Salem, having lived in the Miles home for a time during the World war when her father was in the service.

PLAY FOR RELIEF

During the last two or three years, many and varied agencies have been called upon to give of their time, their energies and their money to relieve conditions brought by adversity of the times.

Athletics have been prominently in the forefront among these agencies. Many have been the benefit ventures whereby money was procured to aid sufferers.

This evening Salem athletes respond again to the relief call. Two teams of the city softball league, the Mullins Foremen and the United Cigars, begin a series for the season's championship. The scene of action is shifted from Centennial park to Reilly stadium where more spectators may be seated. Another game will be played there Monday night.

The proceeds will go entirely to relief work. The fourth winter of the depression is hovering near and relief workers will need all the funds at their command because the drain to date has exhausted resources.

President Hoover, appealing today to the American public, as he outlined to welfare and business leaders in Washington, four salient points in caring for the nation's needy, said:

"See that no man, woman or child shall go hungry or unsheltered through the approaching winter."

There may be other reasons. This is sufficient in itself to prompt as generous response as possible to the call for relief.

Let's have a capacity crowd at Reilly field tonight.

TWO JUNE, SEPTEMBER

Political mad days are here. The traditional Labor day starting point for active campaigning is only a little more than a week back in current history, but already the air is filled with missiles from both camps.

Before the fighting becomes so fierce as to obliterate all delights of calm speculation, it might be well to examine an interesting proposal concerning the lapse of time between the party conventions and the period of active campaigning.

It is suggested by Alfred E. Smith, among others, that it would be better to hold the conventions late in September, thus making them the opening guns in a short, vigorous campaign, rather than a sort of preliminary diplomatic skirmish.

Things that please the fancy in June may lose their attraction by September, and the Smith proposal appears to have suffered, in the minds of many, from a seasonal change of viewpoint. In June, the campaign was a delight in prospect; there was eagerness to be at it. In September, it is, to many, a hard business of reality. Perhaps they allowed their enthusiasm to be consumed in anticipation.

However that may be, there is likely to be more consternation than enthusiasm over any reform which would make the circus burlesque of the conventions the starting point for campaigning. A glance backward at what happened last June in Chicago is enough to convince most of the non-combatants in the quadrennial political tussle that a breathing spell between the nominations and the campaigning is sound practice.

July and August are little time enough to regain mental balance, to get acquainted with candidates and issues and to get prepared for assault and defense. Scatter-brained as presidential campaigns are, they might be worse if sweating and hysterical convention delegates were permitted to rush into them without first cooling off.

Mr. Smith's well-meant proposal, it must be remembered, emanates from the brain of a professional politician, only lately turned editor. The people stampede easily enough when the Labor day hullabaloo starts. They deserve at least two months to get accustomed to the prospect before they open their ears and minds to political persuasion.

THE PRINCELY PREROGATIVE

The Prince of Wales has been at it again, making hearts flutter and tongues wag. No American girl was the chosen companion this time, though. She was Mrs. Cecile Kraus of Turin, Italy—and of all things, a widow.

It all took place at Venice's Lido, a perfect setting for a princely romance. A former American, now hidden behind an Italian title, made the introduction. There had to be an American in it somewhere.

The prince liked Mrs. Kraus, and it goes without saying that she was cordial to the prince. And so they talked about this and that, in German, danced until 3 o'clock in the morning sipped refreshments, went up on the roof and looked at the stars—everything one would do with a prince under the same circumstances. Special attention should be given Mrs. Kraus' refusal to see Venice by moonlight, a la gondola. A woman of some character is that widow.

Then, the next morning, they went swimming together, laughing and having a great time, with little thought of what the newspapers would be saying. And what are the newspapers saying?

Chiefly this, to be found in the conclusion of their newest story on the world's most eligible bachelor: "At noon the prince said good-bye and left in a seaplane for Corfu." No living happily ever afterward, not even any lingering. The princely prerogative is to excite 'em and leave 'em. Perhaps it had better be called the princely duty.

What Others Say

THE KINGDOM OF BLAH

Unquestionably the large majority of radio fans are considerably fed up with the flow of partisan talk broadcast over the ether. And there are rumors that the broadcasting stations are becoming increasingly aware of this bored public attitude.

There are very few figures in the political arena colorful enough to hold the sustained interest of radio listeners in a long-winded speech. There is something about the radio that takes color out of the finest political oratory. The arguments seem cold and lifeless. One reason is, the speeches are read. There is none of that spontaneity that gave forensic splendor to the utterances of great orators in the days when speakers met their audiences face to face. Today the interest is impersonal. One knew in other days that a speaker had appeal when he could draw a crowded house to hear him. One is not so sure now. A million receiving sets may be tuned in for want of a better program to listen to and then the householders go about their conversation or other diversions, children romp and play, quite unmindful of the political logic being emitted from the loudspeaker.

We feel safe in saying that in a large number of cases most people prefer to listen to a comedian or hear a song. Such entertainment cheers them. A political orator thrives on bombast and criticism of the party of opposite faith. And this depresses.

At the risk of drawing fire we say that the average political speech over the radio is pretty sour.—Toledo Times.

The Stars Say:

For Friday, Sept. 16
According to the dominant place of gracious Venus in this day's horoscope much of pleasure and happiness may be assured in the social, domestic and affectional realm rather than in commonplace business activities, unless this business concerns the departments of life mentioned. Women's wear, jewelry, household furnishings catering or anything of a cultural or artistic nature. There is promise of courtship, friendship and marriage, and these happy auspices should not be marred by a too ready or caustic tongue.

Those whose birthday it is are quite likely to concentrate their energies during the year on domestic, social, romantic or artistic activities rather than in workaday fields of endeavor. A child born on this day should be refined, gracious, artistically inclined, lovable and loving, fond of and talented in music, song and dancing.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The Rialto realizes it will never have another Ziegfeld. His passing accentuates his eccentricities, his moods and his astonishing genius. He was the victim of the "lucky break" that had dominated his life even in his exit.

For Ziegfeld, the master, would have seen been on his way down the other side of the hill. The theatre which was his most passionate love was in the corona of eclipse. Perhaps his especial style of extravaganza, too, was being clouded by what he disdainfully called "sophisticated nothings."

He went out at his peak, the champion of his profession. Broadway was not allowed to forget him as it has so many of its idols. The street had not yet begun looking groundward for his clay feet. But Ziegfeld was beginning to show the weight of time.

I saw him last in a restaurant patronized by theatre folk. A handsome figure of a man, he had begun to shrink. His eyes had lost some of the beady lustre. In photographs his eyes seem to be jet black because of their luminosity. They were a light blue, bright, ungrateful like a pigeon's. No one lived more fully. Whatever he wanted, he managed to acquire. Querulous off-times illogically unfair, he had a quality that eventually brought enemies around to be his friends. Everybody in the theatre at some time or other hated Ziegfeld. He knew it—and smiled his glum smile.

There were those who said humor was Ziegfeld's blind spot. It is true he was not much interested in comedy. A kid from Gene Buck generally decided comedy acts for the Folies. Ziegfeld was more interested in melting girls into beautiful scenes and vice versa. Yet he had a quaint humor. Years ago I was his press agent at a time he was embarking for Europe in Ziegfeldian style—the royal suite, food from an avenue shop, a valet, private masseur and galaxy of secretaries. A catastrophe that day shunted ship news almost out of the paper. When the barren New York editions reached Paris and he scanned them he cabled: "Sorry you sneaked me out of New York."

Like other Ziegfeld employees he fired me and forgot about it. I would receive 500-word telegrams blowing me out of the water for some real or imagined publicity dereliction and an inglorious dismissal. At 7 the next morning from his bed in Hastings, his whining voice would assign me for multifarious duties of the day. I issued extravagant orders but expected only a modicum to be executed.

We once parted for good in mutual anger, each saying things we later regretted and for which we mutually apologized. I was incensed at his annoying habit of phoning me at day-break and it was largely why we parted relations. Yet only a few weeks before he died he offered a touch of humor in some trifling request for publicity which ended: "If you don't do this I'll be phoning you around six in the morning to see if you are well and happy."

No man knew Ziegfeld better than his English valet, Sidney, and contrary to the old saw, the producer was very much a hero to his "Jeeves" in real life. Sidney adored him and it was in his arms the master breathed his last. If he was in a fury of temper, Sidney bore the brunt. But Ziegfeld would place no blame without discussing it with his valet.

In his fusty offices in the New Amsterdam—where he spent the large part of his theatrical career—he sat at an enormous desk dotted with ivory elephants of which he was a collector. He smoked rudely $1 cigars imported from Havana and resting in a cunningly contrived humidor that shut one out, rolled in tin-foil, at a button push. Now and then he would leap from his desk and with a giant atomizer spray the room with exotic scents. He was a study in mass contradictions.

Next to the last time I saw him he was producing a show after a bit following a number of costly flops. One in his squeaky, nasal twang and with a flushed array, he said: "Some of these producers think they are going to lay me out like a rug." Then he snapped: "But they won't. And they didn't. He died the master."

A distinctly wet audience is shown listening to James Roosevelt, son of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for the Presidency, as he made an impromptu campaign speech for his father at a swimming pool in Salisbury, Mass. Shortly afterwards young Roosevelt was compelled to abandon his stumping tour of New Hampshire because of what doctors described as "complete exhaustion."

Twenty Years Ago

(Issue of Sept. 15, 1912)

J. S. Coxey, Massillon, whose name has become immortal because of his leadership of an army of the unemployed to the capital city in the early nineties, was in the city Sunday evening for the first time in many years.

East Liverpool.—Twenty-one thousand persons heard Billy Sunday start his six weeks revival at East Liverpool.

In honor of his 22nd birthday anniversary, Joseph Birchfield entertained nine young men Sunday evening at his home, East Fourth st. A four-course dinner was served. A number of hunters wended their way to the woods early Monday, the first day of the hunting season. It is reported that squirrels are found in abundance.

Miss Ruth Hoevicher returned Sunday evening from a two weeks' trip to Atlantic City, Philadelphia,

Washington and Pittsburgh.

With an attendance of 301 the Presbyterian Sunday school held a Harvest rally Sunday. The offering will go to further the work among foreigners in the state.

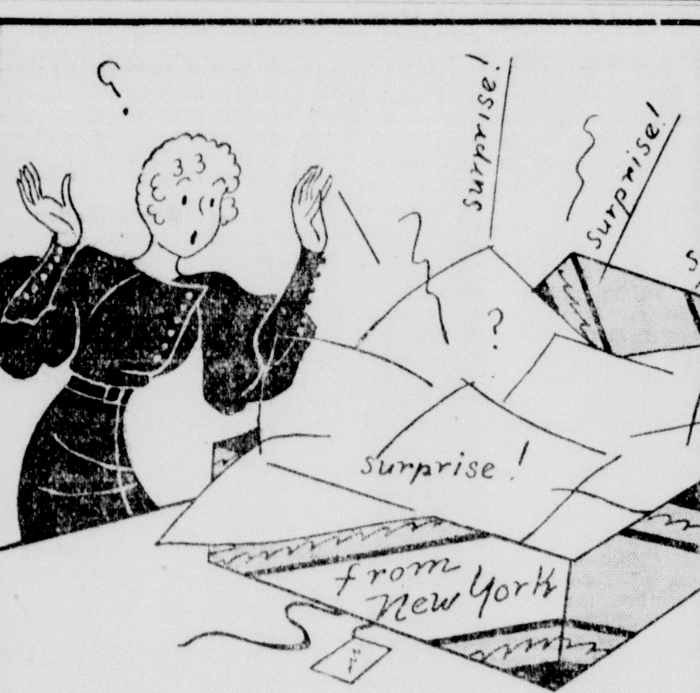

"Taps" sounded for school children Monday morning and 1,533 began work. Two hundred and forty-five students were enrolled in the high school.

Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Cowgill, North Hawley ave., are the parents of a daughter, born Sunday morning.

Miss Anna May Tate, Akron, English teacher in the local high school, arrived here Sunday evening and Monday morning took up her work in the school.

Mrs. Bertha Hannay, Franklin st., has gone to Grand Rapids, Mich., where she was called by the illness of her brother, O. W. Stark.

Miss Matilda Welty and Patrick Mohan were married Monday morning at St. Paul's Catholic church.

We Are Breaking the Exciting News!

SOMETHING's going to happen Saturday... and we are all a-twit! We go around asking each other: "Have they arrived from New York yet?"

They are frocks. That much we can tell you. But we can't describe them because we really haven't even seen sketches of them ourselves. All we know is what our mischievous young buyer wires us from Manhattan. And to date all she'll say is that they're "new"... "exciting"... and that they'll "arrive not later than Friday midnight." Meanwhile we rush to the door every time we see an express wagon or a Parcel Post truck.

Our buyer, being a very particular young person, refuses to send us anything "unless it clicks with the foremost fashion trend on Fifth Avenue." So there won't be more than a very select group... but it will include the smartest styles that fashionable New Yorkers are wearing now!

So be here Saturday... the earlier the better... then you can get a good look at these "New York Frocks" while they're still fresh from their tissue-paper nests.

There's a rumor in the air that a small collection of New York frocks will arrive weekly during the rest of the season but we... Pardon us—here comes an express wagon...

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Don't Neglect Whooping Cough—Nothing is more distressing than to see a young child suffering from spasms of whooping cough. It causes real misery and, contrary to a belief held by most mothers, is a serious disease.

Whooping cough is one of the chief causes of death in children under five years of age. I believe whooping cough is too frequently neglected and too often looked upon merely as one of the normal happenings of childhood.

Not until recently was the cause of whooping cough determined. The germ responsible for it is known as the "bacillus of Bordet and Gengon," named after its discoverers.

DR. COPELAND

To put it in simple language, this germ becomes lodged in the lining of the windpipe. As it multiplies, swelling and mucus formation result. The mucus prevents normal breathing and produces severe spasms of coughing. Later we observe the characteristic "whoop" of the disease.

How Germs Are Spread

The germs are carried by the saliva and the moisture expelled by the cough. Contact with these secretions causes the disease to be passed from one child to another.

Some children suffer mild attacks, while others have severe and prolonged attacks of coughing. The coughing lowers the vitality. The child becomes weak, loses weight and becomes extremely susceptible to other respiratory infections, such as pneumonia and influenza. These are the most dreaded complications of whooping cough.

Never deliberately expose a child to whooping cough. He should be kept away from one who has, or is suspected of having, whooping cough.

Unfortunately, it is not easy to recognize the disease in its early stage. Persistent coughing is an early sign. In the first period the disease resembles a common cold with a cough. This stage lasts about two weeks and during this time the cough becomes severe and more persistent.

Early Diagnosis Important
Early diagnosis of whooping cough is important. Its recognition prevents the spread of the disease. In addition, it hastens recovery and convalescence to begin treatment at once. When proper care and attention are given to the disease in its early stages, the dreaded complications rarely occur.

Vaccines are recommended for the prevention and cure of whooping cough. The injection is simple, painless and causes no discomfort. Its advocates claim that when given to a child before exposure to the disease, whooping cough may be prevented.

Though there exists a great deal of skepticism as to the value of the vaccine, its use should not be denied. If it proves its worth it will be of particular value during an epidemic of this disease. Then it will be given to all children in the community, regardless of whether they have or have not been exposed.

I have spoken rather doubtfully regarding this vaccine. I hope it may be all that is claimed for it and have no reason to doubt its value. Certainly it can do no harm and if it proves helpful in one case out of a dozen, it is well worth while.

DAVIS-LEIBHART

Miss Arline Davis and Michael Leibhart were the principals in a prettily appointed wedding at 4 p. m. Wednesday at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Carrie Davis, Newgarden ave., Rev. C. F. Evans, pastor of the Christian church, officiated, using the ring service. The nuptials were witnessed by the families of the couple.

An embankment of palms in the doorway between the living and dining rooms made the setting for the ceremony. Bouquets of asters and snapdragons were interspersed with the palms.

The attendants were Misses Wilma Dickinson and Gail Davison and John Leibhart and Glen Davis. The bride appeared in a creation of white satin and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Miss Dickinson was groomed in pale green crepe, while Miss Davison wore an orchid chiffon dress. The bridesmaids carried pale yellow roses.

A dinner was served. The wedding cake centered the table. Mrs. Leibhart is a graduate of the Salem High school class of '30. Mr. Leibhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Leibhart, Salem, R. D., is engaged in farming.

All allied orders of the lodge are invited to the celebration.

MERRY MAKERS CLUB

Members of the Goshen Merry Makers club had a winter roast Tuesday evening at Boyd's picnic grounds, northwest of Salem.

A recent meeting of the club was held at the home of the leader, Mrs. William Leigh, Garfield rd. Refreshments were served.

The members will meet again on Oct. 1, with Ruth and Agnes Charlton, Benton rd.

CARD PARTY

Salem chapter No. 68, Women of the Mooseheart legion, held a card party Wednesday evening at the hall, East State st.

Five hundred was the favored game. Prize winners were: Mrs. O. B. Warner, Mrs. William Weigand, C. A. Rommel and Mrs. Leider. Lunch was served.

The chapter will hold another party in two weeks.

LITERARY CLUB

Miss Judith Brooks, Highland ave., entertained members of the Literary club at an afternoon tea Wednesday at her home. Mrs. J. R. Thomas of Aurora was included in the guest list.

Mrs. Thomas will entertain the members at a luncheon next Thursday at her home.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT CLUB

Mrs. H. B. Thomas of Newton Falls formerly of Salem, was hostess at a meeting of the Wednesday Night club last evening at the Salem Country club west of the city.

A dinner was enjoyed after which bridge was introduced with four tables in play. The next meeting will be in two weeks.

VICTORY DANCE

A victory dance will be the feature at the reopening of Rainbow Gardens following the Salem-Lec-tonia high football game Friday night. "Shuffle" Abernathy's 13-piece orchestra from Milwaukee, Wis., will play.

Thurlo Thomas, son of Mrs. Carrie Thomas, Ohio ave., who has spent some weeks at Woods Hole, Cape Cod, this summer, will leave there in a few days for Cambridge, Mass., where he will enter Harvard to work for his doctor's degree.

Thomas received his master's degree at Oberlin last June.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Judge, East Third st., left Wednesday for Chillicothe and other points in the southern part of the state to spend a week.

Miss Barbara Benzinger, East State st., left last night for Sweet Briar, Va., where she will continue her studies at Sweet Briar college.

Miss Mary Bodo, Jennings ave., left this morning for Pittsburgh, where she will visit with her brother, J. P. Bodo, and family.

Mrs. Helen P. Miles, who has been visiting in Davis, Sacramento and San Francisco, Calif., since May, returned home this morning.

End of Ohio Coal Strike Is Looming

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 15.—Success today had crowned Governor George White's efforts to effect an agreement between union leaders and operators involved in the Ohio coal strike called seven months ago by the United Mine Workers of America as a protest against a wage cut.

After two days of conferences, ended last night, the governor announced that two groups, representing the Hocking, Pomeroy and Crooksville bituminous fields, had accepted his ten-point plan of settlement, subject only to approval by the strikers at a delegate convention.

GERVAIS, Ore.—The old saloon building, which has stood on the alley on F street for 30 years, has been ordered torn down. It's a fire hazard.

Appeals to American People to Support Welfare Agencies

a dawning hope upon the organization, individual need in the meantime may be greater than before.

Confident of Success

He asserted, however, that although greater difficulty was encountered this year in obtaining private subscriptions, he was confident that "you will succeed."

"Our people," he said, "are the most generous of all peoples."

Praising the previous generous responses to local relief societies, the President outlined federal relief projects—the $300,000,000 fund, mammoth building programs, Red Cross distribution of government wheat and cotton and efforts to spread employment.

"With these back legs behind your efforts and those of local authorities," Mr. Hoover asserted, "we must make sure that no American will this winter go hungry or cold."

"These programs of the government are based upon the continuation of your services. They presuppose adequate neighborhood support to your efforts, which still comprise a large part of our relief."

They presuppose that the thousands of agencies which in normal times carry the load of distress, shall function this winter to their utmost capacity. Let no man believe, because we have summoned the power of government to these ends, that it can replace your efforts."

Calls On Private Resources

Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under President Wilson, is chairman of the conference. Replying to Mr. Hoover, Baker said that federal and state relief provisions are "helpful" but "not enough."

"To all these public recognitions," he said, "there must be added a devotion of every private resource both to extend the funds purely for relief and to preserve and intensify the survival ministrations of welfare and character building agencies which are more critically needed now than at any other time."

"The work we have in mind," he added, "is not only a mere interim provision to tide over this winter's crisis from the material point of view, but also in its larger aspects it is to continue the work of character building and to conserve and strengthen the fortitude and courage and self-reliance of our people so that there will be no deep injury done to our national life by this tragic emergency."

Baker mentioned, among other things, the need of preserving the "wholesomeness and self-reliance" of the unemployed who become charges for the first time and the need of caring for and guiding young men and women who leave their homes in search of work.

After hearing Mr. Hoover's address, the delegates went to the Mayflower for a luncheon and to hear Alcee Pomeroy, chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation, outline the corporation's policies in making loans from the $300,000,000 relief fund, and Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, speak on cooperation between states and communities in relief work.

Mrs. Owen Speaks
COSHOCOTON, O., Sept. 15.—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, congresswoman from Florida, opened a speaking tour here last night in behalf of the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee.

She spoke at a 17th district rally.

Indict Ministers

PORTSMOUTH, O., Sept. 15.—Rev. G. W. Harris and Claude R. Metz were indicted yesterday on arson charges in connection with a fire at the home of Rev. W. S. Queen, evangelist, several months ago.

Distinguished Wedding Guest

Roosevelt is shown with the bride and groom just after the ceremony at the Roosevelt cottage in Hyde Park, N. Y. Two of the Governor's children, Elliot and Mrs. Curtis B. Dahl, acted as wedding attendants.

Salem Dentist Gives Talk at American Dental Meeting

Dr. Lee W. Atkinson Discusses Making of Roofless Dentures

Members of the American Dental association, who, at their annual meeting which opened yesterday in Buffalo, N. Y., were told by Dr. Lee W. Atkinson of Cleveland about Washington's false teeth, this afternoon heard an address by Dr. Lee W. Atkinson of Salem.

Dr. Atkinson presented a paper discussing what he announced as a new roofless plate. Dr. Atkinson discussed the plate sometime ago before the Cordon Palmer Dental society, meeting in Warren, and subsequently was invited to tell of his work at the American Dental association's meeting.

Had to be Careful
Dr. Pryor, in his talk yesterday, said that when Washington crossed the Delaware he held carefully clamped in his mouth a set of teeth made by Paul Revere. He had to be careful or they dropped out. These teeth were so unsatisfactory that a Dr. Greenwood in New York City made him a set carved out of hippopotamus teeth, the paper related.

Dr. Atkinson explained details of "a denture without covering the palate that could be retained with comfort to the patient, and the assurance to him that it would hold in place under all circumstances."

He related how he had faced the problem of fitting a patient who had an unusually sensitive palate. He said he tried a denture without a roof, baring the entire palate and it answered every requirement.

Subsequently, he said, he made a number of others and they all worked well.

"The only obstacle that I could see then," he said, "was that in that month I had to have suction to retain the plate where there was no undercut."

Swedger on Market

"About this time a swedger was put on the market to swedge metal for base plates for dentures. I procured one and began making both gold and aluminum metal plates. This opened to me a new field. It was not long until I was convinced that with a metal denture you achieved greater adaptation to the mouth. You could equalize the pressure far better over the hard and soft tissues, relieving it on the hard bony tissue and letting it up into the soft tissues and thereby obtaining a much greater suction."

It was not long until I began to realize that with this metal base with its added suction, I could perhaps acquire enough extra suction to make a more general use of the roofless denture. I tried several and met with great satisfaction in the type mouth I have described before, but in the flat ones as you would push the plate into place you could see and hear the air escape, your suction would hold only a few minutes then it would break and down it came. For a time I felt I was defeated, and gave it up several times as something that never could be perfected for general use in all types of mouths.

The problem that I had to solve was how to get a perfect fit. My impressions of the mouth were taken in plaster paris. How correct were they? The answer was, as correct as any impressions can be. No impressions can be exact because the soft tissues of the mouth are distorted and changed in shape even by opening the mouth, let alone when you have it filled with soft plaster. My impression was my pattern. If it were incorrect now could I obtain perfect results, for when I poured my die, I had exactly what my impression gave me, an incorrect die from which to make a base plate which must be accurate to produce the suction needed to hold the denture in place.

If there is no such thing as a perfect impression, I knew I must devise some other way of getting a perfect fitting base plate or it was all a failure. Then I turned my attention to the die over which I fit my plate. I worked on this theory for months, with success and failure, until I found a technique which I will give you in my clinic that enables me to correct my die to the point where I can swedge my base plate over it, take it to the mouth, put it into place and its retention will be so great you will hardly be able to pull it loose. By this method you have the fit of your denture determined before you set up your teeth, and you can carry out the necessary steps to complete your plate.

Technic Exacting
The technic of fitting the base plate for these roofless dentures is extremely exacting. It is not the type of work you can send to a laboratory and expect to receive results. They have to be built in your own laboratory, with the strictest of painstaking care to produce satisfactory results, but it is a technique that any one can master if they come to give it the work and effort it requires.

Discussing the advantages of the roofless denture, Dr. Atkinson pointed out that there is more of the natural feeling of the mouth because so much less surface of the arch is covered. It does not hinder swallowing and taste is normal. It does not encroach on any movable parts of the throat. It is considerably lighter and less bulky.

The fee, he pointed out, in such work does not need be any greater. While it takes more work in fitting the base plate, yet it eliminates to a great extent the trimming and work of refitting.

"In this denture," he said, "we depend on exactness of fit, the exclusion of air and the equalization of the pressure evenly over the parts covered by the base plate for retention of the denture. It does not depend on any of the commonly used patented suction chambers or anything of that sort to retain it and for that reason it causes no irritation to the parts covered. Being a metal base it takes a high polish and less bacterial growth adheres to it and this makes it a denture which highly adds to the health of the mouth."

Dr. Atkinson will deliver his address again on Friday afternoon.

HEART STRINGS

By EDWINA L. MACDONALD
COPYRIGHT, 1932 BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS
Young and beautiful Patricia Braithwait adored her father so much that she was willing to sacrifice love and happiness to insure his future independence by marrying middle-aged Harvey Blaine for his wealth. It was Aunt Pamela who suggested that Pat marry wealth, warning that "the glamour of love wears off." Pamela spoke from experience; her own marriage to handsome Jimmie Warren, a young lawyer, was becoming dull. Jimmie, furious at Pat's engagement, awakens to the realization that he, himself, cares for her. Pat, with youth's optimism, hopes in vain that the young camper whom she only knows as "Jack," and saw only once, will rescue her from Blaine. Jimmie finds her in the garden, sobbing. He takes her in his arms and, in despair and hungry for love, she permits him to kiss her. Next day Pat breaks her engagement. Pamela is suspicious when, immediately following Pat's broken engagement, Jimmie offers to loan Pat money to study art. Pat's father is delighted with Jimmie's offer, saying his insurance (which he would not touch for himself but felt justified in using for his daughter's career) was adequate for her needs. He plans to take Pat to Paris. One minute Patricia feels she cannot leave Jimmie, and the next, she loathes him for the kiss experience of the previous night. Then Jack arrives. Pat thinks—if he had only come yesterday, for today, he is too late and it is Jimmie she wants. Jack explains he stayed away because her "good-bye" seemed so final. Pat learns that he is wealthy Jack Lawrence, for whom a nationwide search was instituted a few years ago when he was kidnapped while enroute to his father's oil lands in Mexico. He tells Pat of his love and longing to take her into his arms at their first meeting. She sobs, "If you only had!" Pat explains how she turned, in desperation, to another in whose embrace the love which Jack had awakened—flowered! Jack refuses to give up and next day moves to the hotel where Pat is quartered.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

The elevator opened. A woman stepped out. An exquisite woman dressed in sand color from head to foot. Her shoes and hose exactly matched the simple yet exquisitely tailored frock. Her hair, parted on one side of a low forehead, was a little darker sand and her perfect, marcel had the look of having been tailored too. Not an ornament. Plain as an old-time wedding ring, yet smart, oh, very smart and modern. A slightly short, slightly square woman, altogether satisfying.

A pair of large hazel eyes rested on Patricia. The eyes were friendly but did not quite reach the point of a smile; they passed to Jack now peering the elevator. She stepped out, addressing the bellboy carrying Jack's bags. He pointed to the right. She smiled her thanks, and her smile seemed to encompass Jack. Not a forward or flirtatious smile, just quiet, encompassing quite impersonal, yet personally engaging. They did not speak, but when Jack faced around in the elevator his eyes were smiling. They followed the lady in sand on her way to the library.

To her surprise Patricia found that she also had responded to that encompassing smile. "Personal-ity," she thought, dropping down on a big divan and tucking her feet up under her. "Colorless as the desert, and as poignant."

Her thoughts returned to Jack. He had packed up his things last night—in bright moonlight, before he knew there would be rain. He had meant it—He would not give her up without a struggle. She thought of her dream, savage men slashing at each other with strange weapons. A little thrill caught her sharply passed as sharply. Perhaps Jimmie would not fight. Perhaps, he didn't want her. She was covering the tragic possibilities in this thought when Ida Kagan, tall, blonde, slinky as to movement and figure, entered, followed by a "gang." They pounced on Patricia.

"What a day! What'll we do? Think up something, can't you? Library? Children. Pat suggests the library as if it isn't dull enough already. Arthur, speak up. You're from Tampa. What do people do in Florida when it rains?"

"Well, replied Arthur, dropping into a chair as if it were to hold himself together, 'I could get one of the bellboys to get us a quart or two if you all want to come up to my room.'"

"Let's go," cried Ida, showing signs of life. "Come on, Pat." "Oh, she doesn't boze," sighed Arthur. "Matter of taste, not morals, she says."

"Nobody drinks for the taste," drawled Mary Lou Lester, her plump dark face determinedly bored. "It's the effect."

"Come on," They were dragging at Patricia. "I can't. I've got a date."

"A date? Who with?" "To do what?"

"To do nothing. Just to wait here for a handsome young man."

"A new man? Have we seen him? When did he arrive? Where's he from? How'd you meet him?"

"You boys go on to your date with the bellboy," Ida said her slinky figure straightening. "We'll stay and help Pat keep hers."

Arthur was frowning darkly. He didn't want to go. But it was his suggestion. The men pulled it to his feet. He protested noisily. The lady in sand came from the library carrying a book. They passed. Noise lessening. All watching her. The young man's? Not a beauty but—something about her. Not until she entered the elevator did they resume their rough persuasion of Arthur. He yielded reluctantly, casting a dark glance at Pat. Several girls went along. Most of them stayed.

Jack stepped out of an elevator. "Don't tell us that's your date," whispered Mary Lou, her round face glowing.

He crossed to them. Patricia introduced him.

"Mr. Lawrence," Ida echoed, "does your name happen by any chance to be—it is! You are Jack Lawrence!"

I saw you play Yale three years ago. Girls, you know Jack Lawrence. Oh, tell us about it."

Mary Lou, seeing his face change, caught his arm to her; "Don't answer. She's a rude woman."

Ida, realizing her mistake possessed herself of his other arm. "Mary Lou's right. It's your affair."

They hustled him away to play ping pong which they had just deserted in high boredom. He was an expert player and they took turns against him. It was clear to Patricia that there would be no conflict between Jack and Jimmie over her if the girls could prevent it.

"Pat, there's no use in your going back to the hotel," Pamela said when Mr. Braithwait's train pulled out. "I'll send my maid over to pack your things and Ben can fetch them tonight. Who was the stunning sheik you were talking with on the wet veranda when we drove up?"

"Jack Lawrence." "Not the Jack Lawrence!" "The?"

"Where on earth did you meet him and when? I didn't see him around yesterday. Hotel pick-up? If so, you're swift. Or he is."

A malicious smile lighted Pat's blue eyes. "Beach pick-up. He's the tramp I told you about yesterday who quoted Browning and explained a marvelous opera to me and gave me a campfire lunch by the side of the road, or rather the sea. You said I'd gone sun-mad and made him up. I thought so myself. But there he is, no longer a tramp, but guest of an expensive hotel, with all the girls cutting each other's throats over him, and there's no sun or moon to account for him. So he must be real."

Her words raced pell-mell in time with her racing pulses. Warren looked up as if about to speak, but sank back silent. Patricia felt a thrill of triumph.

"Too bad of me to carry you off," murmured Pamela. "His father is the senator from Virginia. Very important people. When did he get back? And from where?"

"I'll introduce you, and he can tell you all about it. It's a thrilling tale. I won't spoil it."

"I'll ask him over the villa. Get up a little house party. You'd find it dull after the hotel. Tell me who you want and I'll phone them to come for dinner tonight. Ben can fetch them."

Patricia did not want a house party. She wanted a chance to talk to Jimmie. She had to know how things stood with him. But she dared not refuse lest Pamela think it strange. And Jimmie, the egotistical thing might think I want to be alone with him. I'll show him.

She named several girls and the men they liked.

"And who do you want? Arthur Savage or Jack Lawrence?"

"Oh Jack. You'll adore him. So serious and brilliant and so gay and boyish, too. I never knew anybody who knew better how to play."

"Quite a paragon, evidently," commented Warren, dryly.

"Oh, quite," agreed Patricia. She felt jubilant—A cruel and beautiful woman setting two strong men at each other's throats. Ah, life is nice.

Jack Lawrence at once became the personage of the house party. No longer a shadow as at first when Ida so crudely demanded to hear everything, he was quite frank about his disappearance. The girls thought his adventures thrilling, and even the bored young men envied him experiences which, though obviously grueling at the time, were no end romantic in retrospect. Not that they used the taboo word in their thoughts. Romance was the bunk. But they felt an intangible sense of allure in hard and primitive life for which they had not yet found a word. They were strangely excited and would have kept him talking endlessly. But after his first free statement of the facts, while not cut, he responded to their probing with naked brevity. They liked naked facts in theory; but were disappointed that he made no effort to "dress up" his experiences.

"Pretty wild country, I guess. What?"

"In spots."

"Life in the mountains, hiding out with bandits must be quite a kick. Rough stuff."

"Rather."

"Precarious too, eh?"

"Oh, extremely precarious."

With a laugh.

"Hungry sometimes?"

"Often."

"Brutal fellows to live with?"

"Brutal in self defense. More brutalized than brutal, really."

Come on, Pat, let's dance this."

They felt cheated. Palm Beach was a washout! Just plain blah. Ah, to see life in the raw! Of course it must have been hell to go through and all that—but it was at least not this infernal sameness. Pretty much of a mess, life! Oh, what the hell! Make the best of it—Hey, you female, let's stop. This is good. Hot stuff.

So it went. They got second hand life from Jack and made the best of it.

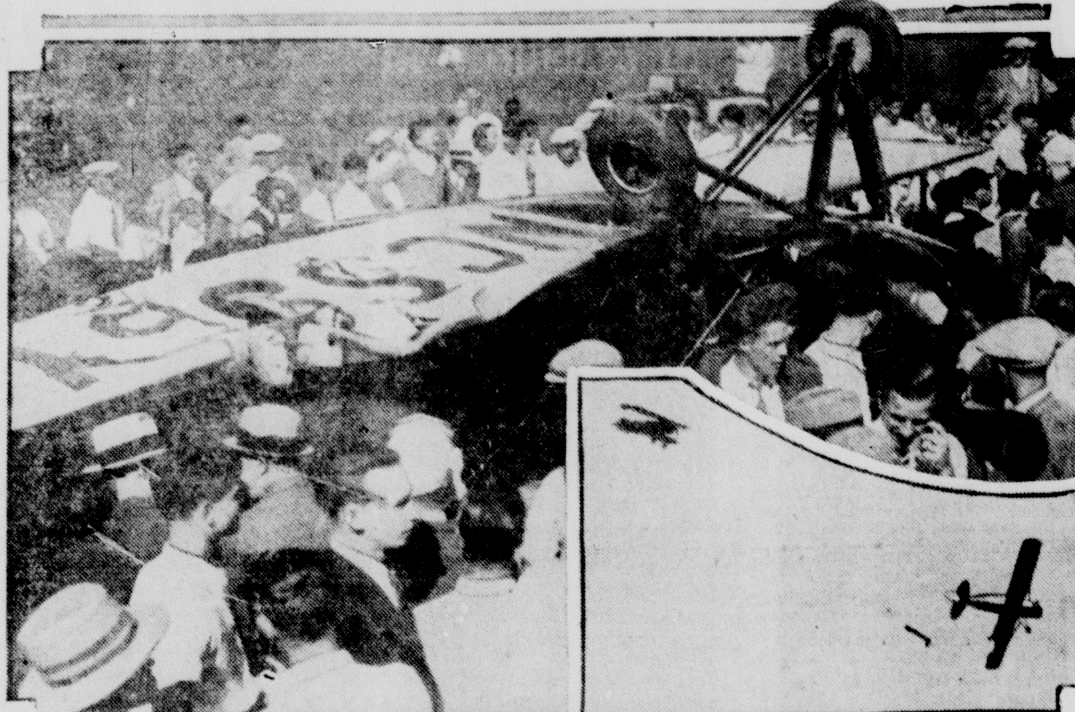

Laurence was a queer duck. Didn't want the reporters to get wind of his return. Most fellows who'd had such adventures would be snatching them from the house tops—lording it over less fortunate chaps.

Arthur Savage, who came over every day in spite of the rain, made up a tale of dark Cuban intrigue in which he, Arthur, had figured heroically. Nobody paid any attention, or even believed him. "Shut up, Arthur. Your technique is rotten. Read a good adventure tale before you try to get off another one. Whereupon, Arthur, subdued, his dark face sullen with defeat.

After Plane Collision in Mid-Air

Curious onlookers are shown examining the wreckage of the Waco plane that crashed to earth at the American Legion air meet in Sky Harbor, Chicago, after it had sideswiped a Stinson plane in the air.

Inset is a remarkable photo taken as the Stinson lost part of a wing after the collision. Strangely enough, it landed safely while the Waco, above it, apparently undamaged, crashed. No one was injured.

MARKETS

STOCK PRICES STILL JUMPY

Recover Moderately In Effort to Regain Their Balance

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 — The stock market again attempted to regain its balance today, and managed to recover moderately, although prices fluctuated rather nervously.

The severe jolt late in yesterday's session appeared to have taken the market by surprise, and many traders here obviously anxious to await further testing of the recent support levels before re-entering the market. The market sold off moderately in the first hour, recovered to show advances of 1 to 4 points, in the second and third hours, but slid back somewhat in the fourth hour.

Union Pacific, after going up 4 points, lost most of its rise in the early afternoon. Gains of 1½ in U. S. Steel and 2 points in American Telephone were about lost, and there were general recessions of a point or so from the best levels reached on the rally. Stocks getting up 2 to 3 points, had included New York Central, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Case, International Harvester, Consolidated Gas, North American, American Water Works, Allied Chemical, Dupont, American Can, Eastman, United Aircraft and Johns Manville.

News Through Camera's Eye

Start of Novel Ox-Plane Race

Methods of transport of two widely separated eras are shown here as they started a novel race from Newark, N. J., recently. At first plane the race may seem pretty one-sided, but it must be explained that the plane was obliged to fly to Chicago, a distance of 1,000 miles, while the ox-cart's destination was Times Square, New York, a distance of 10 miles. P.S. The plane won hands down.

To Wed in Paris

Where Floods Rampage in Southland

Here are two scenes from different sections of the Southland where floods played havoc recently. Lower picture shows the remains of the Texas-Mexican bridge at Laredo, Tex., after flood waters of the Rio Grande had swept away the center span. The part shown is on the Mexican side. Top photo is a scene in Mobile, Ala., where swollen waters of the Mobile River have inundated a large portion of the city, causing thousands of dollars worth of property damage and tying up city traffic.

Here and There About Town

Give Program

Demonstrations of their work by the various young peoples organizations of the church composed the program at a meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the Presbyterian church Wednesday afternoon at the church.

Mrs. H. E. Williams, counselor for young people, was in charge, and Mrs. R. W. Simpson had the devotions. The units included were: The Little Light Bearers society, with Mrs. E. S. Vincent, Supt.; Light Bearers, Mrs. Harry Percival, Supt.; Pioneer Girls club, Mrs. Ralph Long, Supt.; young people, Rev. R. D. Walter, Supt.

Miss Mary Margaret McKee offered a piano solo. A report of the synodical meeting at Wooster, was given by Mrs. Hannah Maule. An exhibit of posters made by members of the Light Bearers was a feature.

Hand Is Injured

Taber Meyers, 50, North Benton, whose right hand was injured in a coal mine accident Wednesday, was brought to the Salem City hospital at 4 p. m.

He had a part of his middle finger of the right hand amputated. The finger was taken off between the first and second joints. Later he returned to his home.

Unity Bible Class

Bettman, Bulkley Meet In Cincinnati

By Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 15.—The proposed debate on prohibition and other issues between U. S. Senator Robert J. Bulkley and his Republican opponent, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, probably will be held in Cincinnati, Sept. 26.

Bettman agreed to the meeting in his home city and set the date last night after Bulkley told him in a telegram to "debate or withdraw." The telegram climaxed a battle of words opened as Bettman when he invited the debate in a recent speech.

The senator agreed to debate, but the two had opposite views as to when and where it should be staged. Bulkley wanted to meet his opponent in Cincinnati, Sept. 27 or 28.

Bettman suggested a meeting before the Cuyahoga County Bar association or the Cleveland City club on Sept. 29 or Oct. 1. This irked Bulkley because he said, he wanted the debate to be "wide open to the public."

The date finally suggested by Bettman last night apparently satisfied Bulkley and he said he believed he could be in Cincinnati then.

HARRISBURG, Pa. — The only wild life which may be hunted in Pennsylvania without a hunting license is a snake. The State Board of game commissioners directed attention to this in announcing the sale of 1932 licenses through county treasurers. The fee is $2.00.

SALEM, Ore.—Nearly 5,000 men are employed on Oregon highway work, State Engineer Baldock reported. Approximately 4,200 of them are working on state jobs, and the remainder on federal projects.

Separate Trial

A separate trial in the Federal Court at New York has been granted U. S. Senator James J. Davis (above) of Pa., one of the seven indicted in connection with a lottery in which the Loyal Order of Moose said to have participated. Senator Davis is head of the organization and a candidate for re-election to the Senate.

THEATER Attractions

"STRANGER IN TOWN" plays today as the State's main attraction. "Chic" Sale, Ann Dvorak, David Manners, Noah Berry and Raymond Hatton play leading roles in this story of competition of two country stores.

As the proprietor of the only grocery store in the town of Boilston, "Chic" is suddenly faced with the competition of a chain store branch. This situation and the fact that his granddaughter falls in love with the young manager of the chain store, provides a starting point for the story, which has all the elements of a real down to the earth, human story presenting real folks.

Theater-goers will have a chance to see the real "Chic" Sale as he is off-screen, for the opening scenes show him at the time when he starts the town which later serves as the setting for the bulk of the film.

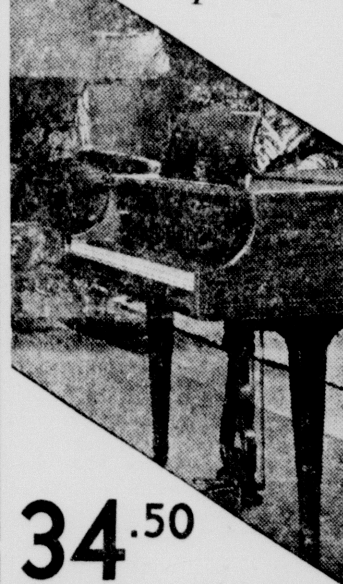

ATTRACTONS for Friday and Saturday at the State show a double feature bill.

"Downstairs" written and starred in by John Gilbert and "My Pal The King" with Tom Mix as its star are the features.

Filmgoers are offered a twofold surprise in "Downstairs".
